- 3.7 Without prejudice to Clause 2.3, all instructions for (a) termination of your participation in the Unit Trusts Savings Plan, or (b) any variation or amendment to your current instructions with respect to your participation in the Unit Trusts Savings Plan must be received by the Bank at least one Business Day prior to the next monthly contribution date. The Bank shall be entitled to debit the Designated Account(s) for your monthly contributions for the month in accordance with your current instructions as appearing in the Bank's files if your instructions for the termination of your participation in the Unit Trusts Savings Plan or your instructions for any variation or amendment to your current instructions with respect to your participation in the Unit Trusts Savings Plan are received by the Bank less than one Business Day prior to the monthly contribution date for that month, and unless due to the negligence or wilful default of the Bank, the Bank's authorized officers, employees or agents, the Bank shall not be responsible or liable to you for any loss or expense suffered or incurred by you in connection therewith.

PART 7 RISK DISCLOSURE STATEMENTS

By requesting the Bank to provide the Services to you, you acknowledge and agree that you have read, fully understand and agree to the following risk disclosure statements.

RISK OF SECURITIES TRADING

The prices of securities fluctuate, sometimes dramatically. The price of a security may move up or down, and may become valueless. It is as likely that losses will be incurred rather than profit made as a result of buying and selling securities.

RISK OF TRADING GROWTH ENTERPRISE MARKET STOCKS

Growth Enterprise Market (GEM) stocks involve a high investment risk. In particular, companies may list on GEM with neither a track record of profitability nor any obligation to forecast future profitability. GEM stocks may be very volatile and illiquid. You should make the decision to invest only after due and careful consideration. The greater risk profile and other characteristics of GEM mean that it is a market more suited to professional and other sophisticated investors. Current information on GEM stocks may only be found on the Internet website operated by The Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited. GEM Companies are usually not required to issue paid announcements in gazetted newspapers. You should seek independent professional advice if you are uncertain of or have not understood any aspect of this risk disclosure statement or the nature and risks involved in trading of GEM stocks.

RISK OF TRADING NASDAQ-AMEX SECURITIES AT THE STOCK EXCHANGE OF HONG KONG LIMITED

The securities under the Nasdaq-Amex Pilot Program ("PP") are aimed at sophisticated investors. You should consult the Bank and relevant professional advisers and become familiarised with the PP before trading in the PP securities. You should be aware that the PP securities are not regulated as a primary or secondary listing on the Main Board or the Growth Enterprise Market of The Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited.

RISK OF TRADING FUTURES AND OPTIONS

The risk of loss in trading futures contracts or options is substantial. In some circumstances, you may sustain losses in excess of your initial margin funds. Placing contingent orders, such as "Stop-loss" or "Stop-limit" orders, will not necessarily avoid loss. Market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders. You may be called upon at short notice to deposit additional margin funds. If the required funds are not provided within the prescribed time, your position may be liquidated. You will remain liable for any resulting deficit in your account. You should therefore study and understand futures contracts and options before you trade and carefully consider whether such trading is suitable in the light of your own financial position and investment objectives. If you trade options you should inform yourself of exercise and expiration procedures and your rights and obligations upon exercise or expiry.

• SOME ADDITIONAL RISK DISCLOSURE FOR FUTURES AND OPTIONS TRADING

This brief statement does not disclose all of the risks and other significant aspects of trading in futures and options. In light of the risks, you should undertake such transactions only if you understand the nature of the contracts (and contractual relationships) into which you are entering and the extent of your exposure to risk. Trading in futures and options is not suitable for many members of the public. You should carefully consider whether trading is appropriate for you in light of your experience, objectives, financial resources and other relevant circumstances.

Futures

Effect of "Leverage" or "Gearing"

Transactions in futures carry a high degree of risk. The amount of initial margin is small relative to the value of the futures contract so that transactions are "leveraged" or "geared". A relatively small market movement will have a proportionately larger impact on the funds you have deposited or will have to deposit: this may work against you as well as for you. You may sustain a total loss of initial margin funds and any additional funds deposited with the Bank to maintain your position. If the market moves against your position or margin levels are increased, you may be called upon to pay substantial additional funds on short notice to maintain your position. If you fail to comply with a request for additional funds within the time prescribed, your position may be liquidated at a loss and you will be liable for any resulting deficit.

Risk-reducing orders or strategies

The placing of certain orders (e.g. "stop-loss" orders, or "stoplimit" orders) which are intended to limit losses to certain amounts may not be effective because market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders. Strategies using combinations of positions, such as "spread" and "straddle" positions may be as risky as taking simple "long" or "short" positions.

Options

Variable degree of risk

Transactions in options carry a high degree of risk. Purchasers and sellers of options should familiarize themselves with the type of option (i.e. put or call) which they contemplate trading and the associated risks. You should calculate the extent to which the value of the options must increase for your position to become profitable, taking into account the premium and all transaction costs. The purchaser of options may offset or exercise the options or allow the options to expire. The exercise of an option results either in a cash settlement or in the purchaser acquiring or delivering the underlying interest. If the option is on a futures contract, the purchaser will acquire a futures position with associated liabilities for margin (see the section on Futures above). If the purchased options expire worthless, you will suffer a total loss of your investment which will consist of the option premium plus transaction costs. If you are contemplating purchasing deep-out-of-the-money options, you should be aware that the chance of such options becoming profitable ordinarily is remote. Selling ("writing" or "granting") an option generally entails considerably greater risk than purchasing options. Although the premium received by the seller is fixed, the seller may sustain a loss well in excess of that amount. The seller will be liable for additional margin to maintain the position if the market moves unfavourably. The seller will also be exposed to the risk of the purchaser exercising the option and the seller will be obligated to either settle the option in cash or to acquire or deliver the underlying interest. If the option is on a futures contract, the seller will acquire a position in a futures contract with associated liabilities for margin (see the section on Futures above). If the option is "covered" by the seller holding a corresponding position in the underlying interest or a futures contract or another option, the risk may be reduced. If the option is not covered, the risk of loss can be unlimited. Certain exchanges in some jurisdictions permit deferred payment of the option premium, exposing the purchaser to liability for margin payments not exceeding the amount of the premium. The purchaser is still subject to the risk of losing the premium and transaction costs. When the option is exercised or expires, the purchaser is responsible for any unpaid premium outstanding at that time.

Additional risks common to futures and options

Terms and conditions of contracts

You should ask the firm with which you deal about the terms and conditions of the specific futures or options which you are trading and associated obligations (e.g. the circumstances under which you may become obliged to make or take delivery of the underlying interest of a futures contract and, in respect of options, expiration dates and restrictions on the time for exercise). Under certain circumstances the specifications of outstanding contracts (including the exercise price of an option) may be modified by the exchange or clearing house to reflect changes in the underlying interest.

Suspension or restriction of trading and pricing relationships

Market conditions (e.g. illiquidity) and/or the operation of the rules of certain markets (e.g. the suspension of trading in any contract or contract month because of price limits or "circuit breakers") may increase the risk of loss by making it difficult or impossible to effect transactions or liquidate/offset positions. If you have sold options, this may increase the risk of loss. Further, normal pricing relationships between the underlying interest and the futures, and the underlying interest and the option may not exist. This can occur when, for example, the futures contract underlying the option is subject to price limits while the option is not. The absence of an underlying reference price may make it difficult to judge "fair value".

Deposited cash and property

You should familiarise yourself with the protections given to money or other property you deposit for domestic and foreign transactions, particularly in the event of a firm insolvency or bankruptcy. The extent to which you may recover your money or property may be governed by specific legislation or local rules. In some jurisdictions, property which had been specifically identifiable as your own will be pro-rated in the same manner as cash for purposes of distribution in the event of a shortfall.

Commission and other charges

Before you begin to trade, you should obtain a clear explanation of all commission, fees and other charges for which you will be liable. These charges will affect your net profit (if any) or increase your loss.

Transactions in other jurisdictions

Transactions on markets in other jurisdictions, including markets formally linked to a domestic market, may expose you to additional risk. Such markets may be subject to regulation which may offer different or diminished investor protection. Before you trade you should enquire about any rules relevant to your particular transactions. Your local regulatory authority will be unable to compel the enforcement of the rules of regulatory authorities or markets in other jurisdictions where your transactions have been effected. You should ask the Bank for details about the types of redress available in both your home jurisdiction and other relevant jurisdictions before you start to trade.

Currency risks

The profit or loss in transactions in foreign currency denominated contracts (whether they are traded in your own or another jurisdiction) will be affected by fluctuations in currency rates where there is a need to convert from the currency denomination of the contract to another currency.

Trading facilities

Electronic trading facilities are supported by computer-based component systems for the order-routing, execution, matching, registration or clearing of trades. As with all facilities and systems, they are vulnerable to temporary disruption or failure. Your ability to recover certain losses may be subject to limits on liability imposed by the system provider, the market, the clearing house and/or participant firms. Such limits may vary: you should ask the firm with which you deal for details in this respect.

Electronic trading

Trading on an electronic trading system may differ from trading on other electronic trading systems. If you undertake transactions on an electronic trading system, you will be exposed to risks associated with the system including the failure of hardware and software. The result of any system failure may be that your order is either not executed according to your instructions or is not executed at all.

Off-exchange transactions

In some jurisdictions, and only then in restricted circumstances, firms are permitted to effect off-exchange transactions. The firm with which you deal may be acting as your counterparty to the transaction. It may be difficult or impossible to liquidate an existing position, to assess the value, to determine a fair price or to assess the exposure to risk. For these reasons, these transactions may involve increased risks. Off-exchange transactions may be less regulated or subject to a separate regulatory regime. Before you undertake such transactions, you should familiarize yourself with applicable rules and attendant risks.

RISK OF TRADING IN LEVERAGED FOREIGN EXCHANGE CONTRACTS

The risk of loss in leveraged foreign exchange trading can be substantial. You may sustain losses in excess of your initial margin funds. Placing contingent orders, such as "stop-loss" or "stop-limit" orders, will not necessarily limit losses to the intended amounts. Market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders. You may be called upon at short notice to deposit additional margin funds. If the required funds are not provided within the prescribed time, your position may be liquidated. You will remain liable for any resulting deficit in your account. You should therefore carefully consider whether such trading is suitable in light of your own financial position and investment objectives.

RISK IN RELATION TO ELECTRONIC TRADING SERVICE

You acknowledge that the Internet or other electronic or telecommunications media are, due to unpredictable traffic congestion and other reasons, inherently unreliable media of communication and that transactions conducted over the Internet or via other electronic or telecommunications media are subject to (a) possible failure or delays in the transmission and receipt of instructions for any or all transactions in securities or other information, and (b) possible failure or delays of execution or execution at prices different from those prevailing at the time when your instructions were given. You acknowledge that there are risks associated with the system, including the failure of hardware and/or software, and that the result of any such system failure may be that your instruction for any or all transactions in securities is not executed. You acknowledge that there are risks of transmission interruption, distortion, omission or blackout, interception of instructions for any or all transactions in securities as well as of misunderstanding or errors in any communication. You acknowledge that it is not usually possible to cancel an instruction for any or all transactions in securities after it has been given. You accept all the above risks and other risks associated with conducting transactions in securities over the Internet or via other electronic or telecommunications media.

RISK OF TRADING DERIVATIVE PRODUCTS

A derivative product incorporates a derivative element. Changes in market conditions may cause great changes in the value of such derivative. As a consequence, your related exposure to price or market risk may be significantly higher in connection with a derivative product than with other non-derivative financial instruments with which you may be familiar. Derivative Transactions are not suitable for many investors as they can be complex and carry with them substantial risk of loss. This notice does not purport to disclose or discuss all of the risks and other significant aspects of any derivative product or any derivative transaction entered into by you through the Bank as agent. You should, therefore, consult with your own legal, tax, financial and other relevant professional advisers prior to entering into any particular transaction. It is important for you to determine whether any transaction is suitable for you or (where applicable) your operations, business or organization in light of your own experience, circumstances, objectives and resources. In the event that a derivative product issuer becomes insolvent and defaults on their listed securities, you will be considered as unsecured creditors and will have no preferential claims to any assets held by the issuer. Uncollateralized derivative products are not asset backed. In the event of issuer bankruptcy, you can lose your entire investment. Derivative products such as derivative warrants and callable bull/bear contracts (CBBCs) are leveraged and can change in value rapidly according to the gearing ratio relative to the underlying assets. The value of a structured product may fall to zero resulting in a total loss of the initial investment. Derivative products have an expiry date after which the issue may become worthless. The price of a derivative product may not match its theoretical price due to outside influences. As a result, actual traded prices can be higher or lower than the theoretical price. Trading derivative products with underlying assets not denominated in Hong Kong dollars are also exposed to exchange rate risk. The exchange may require derivative product issuers to appoint a liquidity provider for each individual issue to provide two way quotes to facilitate trading of their products. In the event that a liquidity provider defaults or ceases to fulfill its role, you may not be able to buy or sell the product until a new liquidity provider has been assigned.

• SOME ADDITIONAL RISKS INVOLVED IN TRADING DERIVATIVE WARRANTS

Prices of derivative warrants can increase or decrease in line with the implied volatility of underlying asset price. You should be aware of the underlying asset volatility. All things being equal, the value of a derivative warrant will decay over time as it approaches its expiry date. Derivative warrants should therefore not be viewed as long term investments.

• SOME ADDITIONAL RISKS INVOLVED IN TRADING CALLABLE BULL/BEAR CONTRACTS (CBBCS)

CBBCs are not suitable for all types of investors. When the underlying asset is trading close to the call price, the price of a CBBC may be more volatile with wider spreads and uncertain liquidity. CBBC may be called at any time and trading will terminate as a result. You should be aware of the intraday “knockout” or mandatory call feature. A CBBC will be called by the issuer and ceased trading when the underlying asset value equals the mandatory call price/level as stated in the listing documents. Even though the underlying asset may be bounce back in the right direction, the CBBC which has been called will not be revived. You will only be entitled to the residual value of the terminated CBBC as calculated by the product issuer in accordance with the listing documents. You should also note that the residual value can be zero. Payoff for Category N CBBC will be zero when they expire early. The holder of Category R CBBC may receive a small amount of residual value payment when they expire early, but there may be no residual value payment in adverse issuers. In general, the larger the buffer between the call price and the spot price of the underlying asset, the lower the probability of the CBBC being called and the lower the leverage effect will be. The issue price of a CBBC includes funding costs. Funding costs are gradually reduced over time as the CBBC moves towards expiry. In the event that a CBBC is called, you will lose the funding cost for the entire lifespan of the CBBC. Although the price of a CBBC tends to follow closely the price of its underlying asset, but in some situations it may not. The trade inputted may still be executed and confirmed by you after the mandatory call event since there may be some time lapse between the mandatory call event time and suspension of the CBBC trading. Any trades executed after the mandatory call event will not be recognized and will be cancelled. Therefore, you should be aware of the risk and ought to apply special caution when the CBBC is trading close to the call price.

• SOME ADDITIONAL RISKS INVOLVED IN TRADING EXCHANGED TRADED FUNDS (ETFs)

ETFs are typically designed to track the performance of certain indices, market sectors, or groups of assets. ETF managers may use different strategies to achieve this goal, including full replication strategy, representative sampling strategy and synthetic replication strategies. An ETF may be traded at a discount or premium to its net asset value. This price discrepancy is caused by supply and demand factors. The performance between an ETF and its underlying index/assets may be disparate. Tracking errors can arise due to factors such as the impact of transaction fees and expenses incurred to the ETF, changes in composition of the underlying index/assets, and the ETF managers’ replication strategy. You must be prepared to bear the risk of loss and volatility associated with the underlying index/assets. ETFs utilising a synthetic replication strategy are subject to counterparty risk and may suffer losses if such counterparty default or fail to honour their obligations. Even where collateral is obtained by an ETF, it is subject to the collateral provider fulfilling its obligations. There is a further risk that when the right against the collateral is exercised, the market value of the collateral could be substantially less than the amount secured resulting in significant loss to the ETF.

RISK OF TRADING EQUITY-LINKED INSTRUMENTS

The return component of Equity-Linked Instruments is based on the performance of a single equity security, a basket of equities securities, or an equity index. You may suffer capital loss should the price of the underlying shares go against your view. In extreme cases, you may lose your entire capital. The maximum return on investment is usually limited to a predetermined amount of cash as specified in the Equity-Linked Instruments. So even if your view of the direction of the underlying stock price is correct, you will not gain more than the specified amount. The return payable for the Equity-Linked Instruments is determined at a specified time on the valuation date, irrespective of the fluctuations in the underlying stock price before or after the specified time. Unlike traditional time deposits, there is no guarantee that you will get a return on your investment or any yield. There is also a possibility that note issuers default on their obligation in returning you the purchase principal or in selling you the underlying stocks. When you buy Equity-Linked Instruments for higher returns, you must be prepared to take higher risks. You should, therefore, consult with your own legal, tax, financial and other relevant professional advisers prior to entering into any particular transaction. It is important for you to determine whether any transaction is suitable for you or (where applicable) your operations, business or organisation in light of your own experience, circumstances, objectives and resources.

RISK OF TRADING FOREIGN SHARES

You should only undertake trading of foreign shares if you understand the nature of foreign shares trading and the extent of your exposure to risks. You should carefully consider whether such transactions are suitable for you in light of your experience, objectives, financial resources, risk profile, and other relevant circumstances. You are also recommended to seek independent professional advice where necessary.

RISK OF CLIENT ASSETS RECEIVED OR HELD OUTSIDE HONG KONG

Your assets received or held by us outside Hong Kong are subject to the applicable laws and regulations of the relevant overseas jurisdiction which may be different from the Securities and Futures Ordinance (Cap. 571) and the rules made thereunder. Consequently, your assets may not enjoy the same protection as that conferred on your assets received or held in Hong Kong.

RISK OF SHARES OVERDRAFT FACILITIES (SOF)

The risk of loss in financing a transaction by deposit of collateral is significant. You may sustain losses in excess of your cash and any other assets (e.g. Securities) deposited as collateral with the Bank. Market conditions may make it impossible to execute contingent orders, such as “Stop-loss” or “Stop-limit” orders. You may be called upon at short notice to make additional margin deposits (including providing the Bank with cash or other additional securities to settle the deficit or interest payment of the overdraft account) or interest payments. If the required margin deposits or interest payments are not made within the prescribed time, your collateral (including the Securities held in your Securities Account) may be liquidated without your consent. Moreover, you will remain liable for any resulting deficit in your account and any interest charged on your account. You should therefore carefully consider whether such a financing arrangement is suitable in light of your own financial position and investment objectives.

RISK OF PROVIDING AN AUTHORITY TO HOLD MAIL OR TO DIRECT MAIL TO THIRD PARTIES

If you provide the Bank with an authority to hold mail or to direct mail to third parties, it is important for you to promptly collect in person all contract notes and statements of your account and review them in detail to ensure that any anomalies or mistakes can be detected in a timely fashion.

RISK OF INVESTMENT IN SHANGHAI AND SHENZHEN CONNECT

Due to the differences between Shanghai/Shenzhen & Hong Kong markets in terms of trading regulations, investment environment and investment products etc, investors have to face other potential risks in addition to the investment risks of trading in local markets. When investing through Shanghai and Shenzhen Connect, investors should grasp the basic knowledge of the Mainland stock market, understand the trading rules of the stock exchange and be fully aware of the investment risks arising from trading via Shanghai and Shenzhen Connect, and thus leading to rational investment. The following is only an overview of some of the potential risks related to Shanghai and Shenzhen Connect. Investors should have a comprehensive understanding of other potential risks prior to investment.

- NOT PROTECTED BY INVESTOR COMPENSATION FUND

Investors should note that any Northbound or Southbound trading under Shanghai and Shenzhen Connect will not be covered by Hong Kong's Investor Compensation Fund.

Hong Kong's Investor Compensation Fund is established to pay compensation to investors of any nationality who suffer pecuniary losses as a result of default of a licensed intermediary or authorised financial institution in relation to exchange-traded products in Hong Kong. Examples of default are insolvency, in bankruptcy or winding up, breach of trust, defalcation, fraud, or misfeasance.

As far as Southbound trading is concerned, since Mainland securities brokers are neither licensees nor registered institutions with the Securities and Futures Commission (SFC) in Hong Kong and they are not regulated by the SFC, the Investor Compensation Fund will not cover Southbound trading via Shanghai and Shenzhen Connect.

As for Northbound trading, according to the Securities and Futures Ordinance, the Investor Compensation Fund will only cover products traded in Hong Kong's recognised securities market (The Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited, SEHK) and recognised futures market (Hong Kong Futures Exchange Limited, HKFE). Since default matters in Northbound trading via Shanghai and Shenzhen Connect do not involve products listed or traded in SEHK or HKFE, so similar to the case of investors trading overseas securities, they will not be covered by the Investor Compensation Fund.

For further information on Hong Kong's Investor Compensation Fund, please refer to the website of Investor Compensation Company Limited. For information on licensees and registered institutions under the SFC, please consult the Public Register of Licensed Persons & Registered Institutions in the SFC website.

On the other hand, according to the Measures for the Administration of Securities Investor Protection Fund, the functions of China Securities Investor Protection Fund include "indemnifying creditors as required by China's relevant policies in case a securities company is subjected to compulsory regulatory measures including dissolution, closure, bankruptcy and administrative takeover by China Securities Regulatory Commission (CSRC) and custodian operation" or "other functions approved by the State Council". As far as Hong Kong investors participating in Northbound trading are concerned, since they are carrying out Northbound trading through securities brokers in Hong Kong and these brokers are not Mainland brokers, therefore they are not protected by CSIPF on the Mainland.

- QUOTAS USED UP

Once the daily quota has been used up, acceptance of the corresponding buy orders will also be immediately suspended and no further buy orders will be accepted for the remainder of the day. Buy orders which have been accepted will not be affected by the using up of the daily quota, while sell orders will be continued to be accepted.

- TRADING DAY

Shanghai and Shenzhen Connect will only operate on days when both markets are open for trading and when banks in both markets are open on the corresponding settlement days. So it is possible that there are occasions when it is a normal trading day for the Mainland market but Hong Kong investors cannot carry out any A-share trading. Investors should take note of the days Shanghai and Shenzhen Connect are open for business and decide according to their own risk tolerance capability whether or not to take on the risk of price fluctuations in A-shares during the time when Shanghai and Shenzhen Connect is not trading.

- RESTRICTIONS ON SELLING IMPOSED BY FRONT-END MONITORING

For investors who usually keep their A-shares outside of their brokers, if they want to sell certain A-shares they hold, they must transfer those A-shares to the respective accounts of their brokers before the market opens on the day of selling (T day). If they fail to meet this deadline, they will not be able to sell those A-shares on T day.

- RESTRICTIONS ON TRADING BY CLOSING CALL AUCTION

Shenzhen Stock Exchange (SZSE) sets closing auction and will not accept order cancellation in this period. This may affect trading strategies of investors.

- THE RECALLING OF ELIGIBLE STOCKS

When a stock is recalled from the scope of eligible stocks for trading via Shanghai and Shenzhen Connect, the stock can only be sold but is restricted from being bought. This may affect the investment portfolio or strategies of investors. Investors should therefore pay close attention to the list of eligible stocks as provided and renewed from time to time by Shanghai Stock Exchange (SSE), SZSE and SEHK.

- CURRENCY RISKS

Hong Kong and overseas investors who hold a local currency other than RMB will be exposed to currency risk if they invest in a RMB product due to the need for the conversion of the local currency into RMB. The conversion will also incur currency conversion costs. Even if the price of the RMB asset remains the same when the investors purchase it and when they redeem / sell it, the investors will still incur a loss when they convert the redemption / sale proceeds into local currency if RMB has depreciated.

- RISK OF TRANSACTION COSTS

Owing to the difference of fee schedules between the listed Hong Kong shares and A-shares, investors should fully understand the charging arrangement and relevant duties prior to trading via Shanghai and Shenzhen Connect.

- RISK OF THE CHINEXT MARKET AT SHENZHEN

Listed companies in the ChiNext market are usually in their initial stage of development with smaller operating size and shorter operating history, less mature business model and weaker risk management capacity, and their businesses are usually subject to higher uncertainty and more fluctuations in their business results, therefore their resistance to market risks and stability may be lower.

In the ChiNext market, there are fewer circulating shares, so stock prices may be more easily manipulated and experience more fluctuation upon market speculation. The rules and regulations regarding securities in the ChiNext market are less strict in terms of share capital and profitability than those applicable to the main board market of the SZSE.
